TTAG NEWS

College 2 Career

This month, students from TAG programs in Marin, Healdsburg, and San Francisco attended a workshop led by college and career consultant Briana Peters. She shared why college is a powerful pathway to opportunity and growth. Students also participated in an interactive activity to identify their interests and connect them with potential future careers.

After the presentation, participants joined breakout rooms with TTAG alumni working in various STEM fields. These small-group sessions gave the girls a chance to hear real-world experiences, learn what different career paths look like, and ask more personal questions.

From the TTAG Participants, in their own words...

I enjoyed how we got 2 rounds rather than one, allowing us to select multiple things we were interested in. I also liked how we were able to ask any questions we had and how they were answered clearly. I really appreciate that we were able to learn ways to get into the universities that we wished to.

- A TTAG participant

3 things that I liked from Brianna's College 2 Career presentation are how we were able to talk to people in the breakout rooms, the detailed explanation on how to improve our chances of entering college, and the FutureScape activity that brought insight to what we should do.

- A TTAG participant

I really liked the FutureScape site and found it very useful! Adding on to that I also found out what major I might do or try!!! And I really appreciate all of you who explained very detailedly how colleges work!!!
